Race and Technology

Exploring race and community in the digital world

Workshop Series @ Harvard University, Fall 2013 | Thursdays from 4:00 to 5:30pm, Emerson Hall 108

Sep 19
Omar Wasow
Assistant Professor, Department of Politics, Princeton University; Co-founder, BlackPlanet.com

Sep 26
Lisa Nakamura
Professor, Departments of American Cultures and Screen Arts and Cultures, University of Michigan

Oct 3
Jessie Daniels
Professor, Public Health, Sociology, Critical Psychology and Co-Principal Investigator, JustPublics@365, City University of New York

Oct 10
Baratunde Thurston
Fellow, Berkman Center for Internet & Society, Harvard University; Co-Founder, Jack and Jill Politics blog; former Director of Digital, The Onion

Oct 17
Vincent Brown
Professor of History and of African and African American Studies and Founding Director, History Design Studio, Harvard University

Oct 24
Christina Xu
Co-Founder, ROFLCon; Team member, Breadpig; Chancellor, Institute on Higher Awesome Studies

Oct 31
TBD

Nov 7
Evelyn Brooks Higginbotham
Director of Social Engagement Initiative and Victor S. Thomas Professor of History and of African and African American Studies, Harvard University
John Mugane
Director of the African Language Program and Professor of the Practice, Department of African and African American Studies, Harvard University

Nov 14
Ethan Zuckerman
Director, Center for Civic Media, MIT; Co-founder, Global Voices

Dec 5
Student Presentations
Undergraduate members of the course African and African American Studies 108x: Exploring Race and Community in the Digital World will share their semester-long multimedia research projects.

Open to the general public | raceandtechnology.wordpress.com | cdmartin@post.harvard.edu

Sponsored by the Department of African and African American Studies, Harvard University